

EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT PLANS/EMERGENCY OPERATIONS PLANS

- How complete is our organization's emergency preparedness plan?
- Does it comply with current standards and regulations?
- Where should I begin?

Yale New Haven Center for Emergency Preparedness and Disaster Response (YNH-CEPDR) emergency management specialists conduct emergency management plan assessments that guide healthcare organization's on the path to emergency preparedness program improvements. Through an assessment of current emergency management plans and emergency operations plans, healthcare facilities can identify emergency preparedness strengths and gaps and benefit from targeted recommendations provided by our healthcare emergency preparedness experts.

Comprehensive plan assessments from YNH-CEPDR address:

- ▼ 2009 Joint Commission Hospital Accreditation standards
- ▼ Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services guidance and regulations
- ▼ Federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration standards
- ▼ National Integrated Accreditation for Healthcare Organizations requirements
- ▼ Department of Homeland Security regulations - National Incident Management System
- ▼ Department of Health and Human Services Hospital Preparedness Program Level 1 and 2 capabilities

YNH-CEPDR assists facilities in developing emergency operations plans that improve emergency response and positively impact daily operations. Please contact YNH-CEPDR to discuss how we might assist your organization on the path to continuous emergency preparedness improvement.
